

Mark Button joins Titanium Resources Group as COO

9 November 2009: Titanium Resources Group (“TRG” or “the Company”) is pleased to announce that Mark Button has now joined TRG as Chief Operating Officer.

Prior to joining TRG, Mr. Button spent 12 years at Anglo American Plc, including 4 years as Mineral Resources Manager at Anglo Base Metals’ Namakwa Sands heavy mineral sands deposit. In his role at Namakwa Sands Mr. Button was responsible for managing operational and capital expenditure budgets, overseeing the mine planning, exploration and mineralogy departments as well as being the lead competent person for the operation.

In total Mr. Button has over 22 years experience of working in Africa in a variety of mining and geological roles. Most recently he was Regional Geological Resources Manager at Anglo Coal’s Witbank Coalfields in South Africa. Additionally, Mr. Button has a Masters Degree from the University of the Free State (SA) in Mineral Resource Management.

John Sisay, Chief Executive of TRG said:

“On behalf of the Board I would like to welcome Mark to TRG and I look forward to working closely with him in the future.

“I am convinced that Mark’s significant mineral sands expertise and operational experience will enable us to continue to deliver the ongoing operational turn-around at Sierra Rutile whilst also reinvigorating our exploration programme. Furthermore, Mark’s experience of managing capital expenditure programmes will enable him to make a significant contribution to our plans to expand production at Sierra Rutile.”
